

Paul Lewey was born in Rochester, Kent in 1969. Paul completed an Art and Design BA Hons at the University of Bradford in 1998. It was during his last two year at college he started working in watercolour, the medium he has since concentrated in. Except for the past few years, he has been working with oil and acrylic paint. His work is predominately figurative and portraiture. He is based in Brighton.

"When Facing One's Filthy Paintings The Word Artist Sounds Perverse"

'If I can say one thing about my work it is 'Disturbed', I try to portray 'Something Is Not Quite Right?' to my work...

I feel all art is Political in a way, but some are so subtle it's hard to notice? This is where I see my art...

I am not sure what is the importance of it to the audience or the viewer because I believe I do not paint for others but for myself and sometimes I think it is a way for me to expose myself or even punishing myself? You can take the person out of catholicism but it is hard to take catholicism out of the person...'
